JOB MOVILITY FOR MNAR

Short Description

In order to meet professional needs, revitalize certain neighborhoods and accommodate more people and school children, and to offer conditions worthy of accommodation, towns and villages in France, in close connection with State and local authorities, have engaged in the mobilization of resources. With these initiatives, internal mobility in France is thus encouraged.

On a practical level, towns and villages can offer:

- Job offers or takeover of shops (bakeries, crafts, food shops, etc.),
- Low-rent rental apartments,
- Places at school and creche,
- Accompanying associations.
- Easier access to communal social services.

These initiatives help to relieve congestion in sensitive neighborhoods where migrants, refugees and asylum seekers are over-represented and where their families are not always safe. These projects also aim to satisfy unfilled job opportunities in the regions and provinces in France.

Several associations helping migrants, such as France Terre d'Asile, Emmaus France and the Salvation Army, as well as an association of residents Living at 93 Chapelle was also present to support this kind of initiatives.

Title: OFII

Type of resource: Good practice

Country: France

Language: English

Short Description

Created in 2009, the OFII (French national Office of Immigration and Integration) is now the only state operator in charge of legal immigration. More than 900 agents work at the Office in France at the Paris headquarters and in more than fifty territorial branches, delegations or hosted platforms that cover the entire national territory.

The OFII accompanies the company in the procedure of introducing its future foreign employee to France, after the employer demonstrated that could not hire the person needed on the French labour market. It is also the one-stop-shop for young professionals benefiting from a bilateral agreement where the employment situation is not enforceable.

Advantage: The young migrant professional receive assistance but must justify diplomas or work experience according to the position offered in France. The employer will not have to justify that was able to find in France a person according to the proposed position.
